Why is there a need for an IP Licensing Coach?

The most significant changes occurring in the world today is the transition from a tangible based (machinery and equipment) economy to an intangible based (intellectual property) economy. Unlike hard or physical-based assets that depreciate over time, intellectual property assets appreciate over time as more is invested in their development. The rapid pace of change in IP laws worldwide, and the recognition by governments, corporations, and investors of the value of intellectual property assets has made IP management and licensing the new business model of the 21st century.

A Trillion Dollar Underused Asset

Today, over 80% of the value of a business is its intangible assets, primarily in the form of intellectual property. Yet, US companies annually waste $1 trillion in underused intellectual property assets, according to a report by Forrester Research. In a recent survey of the UK business market, the overwhelming majority of CEO's and Business Owners say IP management is vital to the success of their companies. They also said managing and monetizing their IP assets is becoming more critical. Yet over 60% admitted they did little to maximize their IP income opportunities. The biggest reason for this waste is the lack of understanding by business owners and CEOs on how to manage and make money with these IP assets.

The rapid pace of change in IP laws worldwide, and the recognition by governments, corporations, and investors of the value of intellectual property assets has made IP management and licensing the new business model of the 21st century.

Intellectual Property is Critical to Business Success

Over the last decade, study after study is confirming the wealth-creating power of IP rights. It is the driver of economic growth, incomes, jobs, investment, and trade. Among the key findings of these reports are intellectual property-related industries (and businesses) tend to grow at approximately twice the rate of the economy as a whole.

That is a powerful message, especially for business owners. It means their business and IP go hand in hand. It's an integral part of their competitive advantage and critical to their on-going success.

Intellectual Property is now the most critical business asset, and effectively managing it is essential to the survival and growth of every business. In this new intangible economy, the most successful companies use an IP licensing model. Business owners and CEO's of tomorrow who are ill-prepared to operate in this environment will be at a significant competitive disadvantage.

Intellectual Property is now the most important business asset and managing it effectively is essential to the survival and growth of every business.

What is an IP Licensing Coach?

Just like attorneys, accountants, management, and marketing consultants, IP Licensing Coaches have specialized knowledge about a niche area - making money with intellectual property. They understand the strategic use of IP and how it impacts every area of a business – marketing, capital raising, operations, or business development.

The IP Licensing Coach helps a client use its IP assets more effectively in their business strategy to improve their top and bottom-lines. They help IP owners identify their IP, make sure their IP is protected, define new applications and markets for the IP, find the licensing partners, and manage the licensing process to commercialize the client's intellectual property assets successfully.

The IP Licensing Coach acts as a clearinghouse for first-line information on intellectual property, from helping clients stay current on new IP licensing opportunities to managing their IP portfolios. They also help clients find other IP related service providers such as IP attorneys, valuation firms, and royalty auditing companies.

They look for the competitive advantage created by a client's IP and how to integrate it into the overall business strategy. Most important, they are always seeking new ways to utilize a client's IP to create business value, drive revenues, and differentiate the company in the marketplace.

The IP Licensing Coach focuses on the business-centric side of intellectual property. They look at IP as intertwined with a client's business, rather than looking at IP as a separate issue.

Why Would a Business Work with an IP Licensing Coach?

Having access to legal, accounting, and other expertise is vital to help a business grow as rapidly and efficiently as possible. Although many companies are aware of the growing importance of IP, mastering the intricacies of licensing takes time. Most have no easy way to learn about the effective use of licensing in their business models and strategies.

Knowledge, skills, and competencies in licensing IP are in short supply and often very expensive or inaccessible.

Startups, small and medium-sized businesses are especially in need of licensing expertise to avoid the pitfalls and use their IP assets to increase profitability, value, competitiveness, and bottom-line success.

The IP Licensing Coach saves time, money, and resources. Their expertise and knowledge of the licensing business help a business owner minimize their costs and maximize the money-making opportunities for their intellectual property assets.

Who Makes an Ideal IP Licensing Coach?

Business coaches, strategic advisors, marketing consultants, and other professional business service providers ready to play an active role in helping companies understand and use IP assets in their businesses. By providing IP services, professional business service providers can:

- Position themselves as leaders in a cutting edge opportunity in the new economy;
- Attract new clients in highly innovative sectors;
- Generate new sources of income through new services;
- Create new services and add value to existing ones;
- Help clients increase their competitiveness; and
- Help stimulate more business and innovation in their local economy.

Because professional business service providers already enjoy strong relationships within their respective client base, they are uniquely situated to help their clients successfully commercialize their IP assets.

After Training Support

Membership in the IP Licensing Coach Academy includes the following:

Monthly Coaching Support Calls

Ninety-nine percent of the value of this program is in the monthly support you receive in the live coaching calls. Learn from my 25 plus years of real-world experience and millions of dollars in licensing deals. Each month you will have my expertise and experience to guide you in your coaching activities. We'll discuss your current projects, address any challenges, review your licensing plans and strategies, brainstorm about new opportunities, and help you maximize your client's IP assets. I'll work with you every step of the way to ensure that your services are the best IP money-making resource your clients can buy.

Licensing Deal Review

You'll get a second set of eyes to look over your licensing deals and help you structure the best licensing agreement for your clients. We'll show you how to improve or enhance the terms of the licensing deal with just a quick review. A deal review can also spot potential problems with conditions that are unfavorable to your client or could come back to haunt you down the road. That is one of the most valuable resources being a member of the IP Licensing Coach Academy.

Resource Database

A worldwide directory of private and public resources indexed for easy access to resources in the US, Europe, and Australia/Asia, including government agencies, trade associations, inventor friendly companies, trade shows, IP exchanges, companies actively licensing new IP, and much more.

Document Library

Sample agreements, including Non-Disclosure Agreement, Licensing Deal Memo, Patent, Trademark, Copyright, and Trade Secret Agreements; customizable Licensing Presentation Template in PowerPoint format, plus a licensing strategy outline template and IP audit worksheets.

IP Dealmakers Event (Virtual)

The IP Dealmakers Event brings together your fellow coaching members and special guests. You'll have an opportunity to "think-tank" with other like-minded licensing coaches and IP professionals. The learning opportunity is priceless. You will be amazed at how much in-depth information you'll learn about the licensing business during this event. Every IP Dealmakers Event is recorded so you can continue to benefit from the information, presentations, and discussions during the event.
